

The Challenger is trying to mislead the jurors.

Indeed, he claims that the logo shown below is referred to as the token logo by the KRYLL press kit. THAT IS WRONG.

However, the KRYLL press kit contains many logos and none are referred to as the KRL token press kit. The logo presented by the Challenger is expressly that of the mobile application.

You can check for yourself by downloading the press kit here.

The KRL Token logo is the one submitted as previously shown.

The Challenger's argument and the fact that it concealed evidence demonstrates its bad faith.
