

an Easy win for Justice

with a NO vote on this case

Challenge submitter, despite all common sense and with 3/3 NO vote on round 1 decided to burn his money to fund an appeal.

- 1) The timezone is irrelevant.

Submitter flood of evidence collapsed and the last line of defense for his side is

“In my Timezone, please trust me, it was still the 10th Jan where I live!!!”

Kleros is permissionless, we don't need and do KYC, it's a pure internet-based borderless dispute resolution system.

UTC is and can only be the consensus timezone for all documents and deadlines, it's simple logic.

Otherwise, it's pretty obvious that everybody will pretend to live in Alaska or in the Samoa Islands to grab a few competition-free hours for every single campaign made by Kleros.

With a simple VPN, you would able to cheat from the comfort of your home!

When a case is down to nitpicking on timezones and flooding the court, it's pretty clear to everyone that the defense side doesn't have any solid grounds.

Hubris and false-hope of free money lead the submitter to the appeal, it's time to finish this,

Enjoy the easiest case of your Juror career.

Vote No.