

As stated in the policy's first paragraph, Proof of Humanity is meant "to create a Sybil-proof list of humans". A single human controlling multiple accounts is against the spirit of the policy. In addition, rule #4 reads "[...] submitter displaying [...] his Ethereum address", which explicitly instructs that the submitter should be the owner of the Ethereum address.

Exceptions

There are cases in which it makes sense to control multiple accounts. For example, parents, who are the natural guardians of their children, are expected to own and manage their children's wallets. The same might apply to the elderly or people giving consent about this. Delegating the profile's management to another human is in my opinion acceptable, even if consent is not possible to be proven in the POH submission.

However, there has to be some limit to this.

Consent

No matter how hard it is to prove consent, there is something we can do about this. Repeating a non consensual act is harder than doing it once, especially if the two persons involved don't know each other. If a challenger thinks that an attacker has manipulated a human into recording a POH submission video or that a profile has been a victim of a phishing attack, it should be the submitter's responsibility to record a video again proving the challenger wrong (= showing a recent proof of life). Presumption of guilt is important here, the same way it is important in the Kleros' appeal system (not funding one side = losing the case). Also refer to evidence posted in case #823.

Note that even if the newly submitted video is not an irrefutable piece of evidence that the submitter is the owner of the address, it should resolve the dispute in favor of the submitter.

Duplicate Submission

In this case, I'm accusing profile 0x7b6f94bb7379c5525669a4057af94e0b0b6dc32f, a.k.a. Atticus, of controlling at least ~30 profiles without consent. Linda is one of these profiles. What I presume is that Atticus is the owner of the account, doesn't really know Linda and therefore won't be able to contact her in order to ask her for a proof of life video.

For the record I'm listing below profiles that I think may be controlled by Atticus. All of them are connected through the vouching path, which of course converges in Atticus profile. Additionally, there are suspicious patterns visible in many or all of the videos, such as (a) videos on the street, (b) same type of sign with printed address and a phrase written behind, (c) similar handwriting, (d) Samsung Galaxy Nexus or Razer used, (e) profile pic in the same spot, (f) all the submission were funded by the same account, which could be an exchange account or a scammer's account as some claim.

In vertical videos recorded with a Samsung Galaxy Nexus, sometimes a woman appears close to the person holding the phone. I suspect that Atticus is working with someone else: profile 0xa3f24404db7f29e2b7513dca904677d029b6e673, a.k.a. Agent99. She even seems to have the same ring as the hand shortly visible here. Both of them are the only humans in this vouching path who asked for vouches in the telegram crowdvoucher group (See here). My guess is that Agent99 recorded the horizontal videos with a Razer phone.
